Specification

The examiner has not checked the specification to the extent necessary to determine the presence of all possible minor errors (grammatical, typographical and idiomatic). Cooperation of the applicant(s) is requested in correcting any errors of which applicant(s) may become aware of in the specification, in the claims and in any future amendment(s) that applicant(s) may file.

Applicant(s) is also requested to complete the status of any copending applications referred to in the specification by their Attorney Docket Number or Application Serial Number, if any.

The status of the parent application(s) and/or any other application(s) cross-referenced to this application, if any, should be updated in a timely manner.

Information Disclosure Statement

The references not in the English language have been considered only to the extent of any statement of relevance. The search report in this application is not in English.

Election/Restriction

Claims 4, 5, 7 and 8 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected invention, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Election was made without traverse in the reply filed on November 14, 2007.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1-3 and 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over either US 6,362,312 to Eller et al. or US 2004/0220381 to Schlitter et al. (note that the effective date of the latter reference antedates the instant application because there is no certified translation of the German priority document of record in this application).

The instantly claimed invention recites a composition comprising a catalyst comprising a clay material and an alkali soluble silicon dioxide. Apparently, this recitation is meant to embrace an acid-treated montmorillonite, i.e. calcium bentonite material. The composition has been calcined and is claimed with respect to various pore characteristics.

Each of Eller et al. And Schlitter et al. disclose acid treated bentonite materials that have been calcined, substantially as claimed by applicant. The procedures for the production of the references catalysts appear identical those employed in the instant application. Accordingly, the examiner can only conclude that the claimed catalyst characteristics would naturally flow from the production process and would therefore be inherent. It is well settled that when two materials appear virtually identical by virtue of their preparation method, it is proper to shift the burden to applicant to demonstrate that there is some difference that has been overlooked or not appreciated by the examiner.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Applicants are advised that any evidence to be provided under 37 CFR 1.131 or 1.132 and any amendments to the claims and specification should be submitted prior to final rejection to be considered timely. It is anticipated that the next office action will be a final rejection.
